Lebanon Schools To Hold Open House For Phase 1

Public To Get First Look Inside New Lebanon High School

September 14, 2012

LEBANON, Ind.

Lebanon taxpayers will get their first look at their newest education investment on Wednesday September 19th. That's when the school corporation will hold an open house to show off the new building. The event will be from 7-to-8 PM at the high school.

"We wanted to show our stakeholders, who are our taxpayers, the tangible results of their investment in Lebanon Schools", said Superintendent Dr. Robert Taylor. "We could not have accomplished this monumental effort to change the educational landscape in Lebanon without public support and we're grateful", said Taylor.

Administrators will be on hand to show visitors new classrooms, the media center and the latest innovations in education technology. Those in attendance will be guided through the new school and have the opportunity to ask questions about the building.

"This is homecoming week and we're hoping alumni, parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles even those who don't have a direct connection with Lebanon High School will come and see the start of our new school", says Principal Kevin O'Rourke.

The New City Center, a partnership with the City of Lebanon, to construct a convention space within the building, won't be complete until the end of Phase 2. There will be a grand opening at the completion of the building project in January 2014.
